

I realize this legislation has been developed with very worthy motives.

But I am convinced it goes off in the wrong direction. No one becomes more wise or innovative by putting additional stars on his shoulders. Nor does being designated as Principal Military Advisor to the President improve the quality of his advice.

After all, no single man is intelligent enough to do this job all by himself.